A good deal of restoration will be required when the historic T-Anchor ranchhouse, which now sits behind a chain-link fence just off U.S. 87 about a mile north of Canyon, is moved to the West Texas State University campus to become a part of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum's collection.

T-Anchor house faces move to WT campus

The first log cabin in the Texas Panhandle, and the scene of many other historic events in the early life of Randall County has been returned to the control of West Texas State University for a possible move to the university campus and a renovation.

The T-Anchor ranchhouse, which is nestled among tall trees just east of U.S. 87 about a mile north of Canyon on WTSU property, was returned to university control Thursday by the board of the Randall County Historical Survey Committee.

Acting on a motion by Joe Gidden, the board unanimously voted to turn the ranchhouse over to the university after they were told that current plans call for moving and renovating the log cabin.

The action Thursday, the first tangible action in more than a decade of talk about restoration of the ranchhouse, clears the way for preservation of a house which was headquarters for a vast ranching empire in the late 1800s.

Dr. Jim Hanson, director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, talked with board members during the Thursday meeting and unveiled plans for preservation of the old house.

Hanson said the museum board of directors has allocated funding for moving and restoring the ranchhouse and providing furnishings to make the house a part of the museum's collection.

He said initial and unapproved plans call for the house to be moved to a site just to the north of the old library building on the university campus.

Once moved, renovation would begin on a house which for years was left unattended as cattle roamed through rooms once the scenes of political rallies and, apparently, gunfights.

Hanson said the house, once completed, would be manned by paid staff members of the museum and would be open to the public.

He said university regent approval would be necessary to accomplish the move to the campus site.

Currently, the historic house is hidden by trees and various buildings associated with the university farm operation. A chain link fence was erected around the house recently to prevent vandalism and intrusion by animals.

For a number of years, the historical committee had talked of plans to restore the building and use it as the focal point of a roadside park at the original site.

County commissioners had even discussed the possibility of constructing a road around the old home making it accessible to passing motorists.

Board members Thursday felt the relinquishing the house to the museum would be to the advantage of the viewing public as well as to the house itself.

"We've been kicking this around for nine years now and have done nothing," Gidden said. "This would be a good opportunity to move off of dead center."

Hanson said no time table has been worked out as to when the house might be moved and when renovation might begin. He indicated, though, work might be completed within a year.

The history of the T-Anchor ranchhouse stretches back to 1877, when it was constructed from logs from the canyons at Fal de Hour, waterfalls on Palo

Needs identified by school survey also seen by board, teachers

(Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series of articles which will take an in-depth look at the recent survey of opinions of Canyon school district residents conducted by a University of Texas team.)

The community and the Canyon School board apparently have their heads together on areas where the school system can use improvement.

Public opinion was tested recently through a survey conducted by a University of Texas study team in the local district and the opinion poll turned up answers the school board has already identified.

The needs of the school district, in fact, have been the subject not only of several questions included in the UT team survey, but also of a year-long study effort by a school system self-evaluation team and of a recent visiting accreditation team.

Oddly enough, the needs identified by each of the four groups are similar.

"In your opinion, what are the two most important needs that exist today to improve the schools in Canyon" interviewers asked several hundred CISD residents two weeks ago in the school-financed survey.

And, the study team reported the responses:

"The largest single need . . . was seen to be that of more classrooms or school buildings, particularly in the northern area of the school district. Another related category of concern was that of class size, which was indicated in a significant number of comments revealing a perceived need for smaller classes. . ."

Canyon school board members themselves have been fretting with the need for new buildings for the last year and have already purchased land in the northern portion of the district for construction of a junior high school and a high school.

An architectural firm is already at work on initial plans for construction of the buildings.

The board has also recognized the need for an additional elementary school, but are yet undecided on where to locate a new one.

In addition, the board has authorized construction of more portable classrooms.

Another question asked by the UT survey team tied directly into the perceived need for more buildings.

"If Canyon school enrollment increases so that more schools are necessary in the north part of the district, would you support a bond issue to build the additional schools?" asked the interviewers.

A large majority of the respondents — 80 per cent, in fact — indicated they would support a bond issue to build additional schools if needed. Residents of the Gene Howe area were more favorable to the issue than were residents in the Rex Reeves area.

"It should be emphasized that affirmative responses to questions of this type do not guarantee a favorable vote in an actual bond election," the interviewers warned in their commentary on the responses.

Nevertheless, School Supt. Jerry Jacobs is encouraged by the response.

He said he feels residents will

Presentation of doctoral program proposals to face lengthy delay

The presentation of proposals for offering doctoral-level degrees at West Texas State University will be delayed possibly as much as a year for further in-depth study, the News was told last week.

Dr. Ray Malzahn, academic president, indicated Friday officials had hoped they could present proposals for offering two doctorate degree programs at the up-coming meeting of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

The Board meets to approve new program proposals each October and April.

Malzahn indicated the proposals will probably not be presented the Board even next April.

But, he said, the delay does not indicate a lack of interest in pursuing the possibility of offering such programs at the university.

"It was not possible to work out all the details," in time for presentation to the Coordinating Board in October, Malzahn said. "With something as complex as the doctoral programs we needed more time. We will continue to work on them."

He said the proposals will not be complete enough for presentation in October or even in April.

"It's a very serious matter and we'd better have all the details completely worked out," he said. "We'd better have them well researched before we start requesting these."

Study will continue under the guidance of Dr. David Wheeler, graduate dean, Malzahn said.

Among the areas to be eyed more closely will be possible demand for such programs and the feasibility of establishing the programs through the university curriculum.

The university study is currently focusing on establishment of doctoral degree programs in educational administration and in agri-business.

The current educational administration program is a six-year offering.

Dr. Wheeler recently told the News education and agriculture are seemingly natural areas of demand for Panhandle residents. The university recently developed a master of agriculture degree program.

Besides receiving approval from the Coordinating Board, the doctoral programs must also be scrutinized and okayed by two national educational accrediting agencies.

The university has not before offered doctoral-level programs.

County commission to sit as equalization board

Randall County commissioner Bill Butler is expected to expand on his original motion of nearly a month ago when commissioners meet Monday and discuss an up-coming tax revaluation in the county.

Butler is expected to outline exactly how a total revaluation of all county property can be accomplished with personnel in the tax office without hiring an outside firm.

It was not known at press time whether any county official would be forthcoming with a new plan for taxation, other than the revaluation, which would make legal the current tax schedule.

Butler moved and his motion passed almost a month ago to temporarily raise an additional $25,000 for the county by changing the tax percentages used to figure property values in the county. The change had primary impact on rural property owners.

Commissioners will meet in their regular session beginning at 1 p.m. Monday and then will meet following the business session as a board of equalization to hear tax complaints.

Last year, no taxpayers showed up at the board meeting to complain of tax increases.

Commissioners must also meet July 29 to hear tax problem cases.

County Clerk LeRoy Hutton has sent out about 4700 of an estimated 6000 letters to taxpayers whose taxes will be adjusted for this year's rolls.

Most of those who receive letters will have been affected by the illegal tax structure increase voted by commissioners on the Butler motion.

The board of equalization meeting will also be on the second floor of the new portion of the county courthouse in downtown Canyon.

It will be at about 2 p.m., according to County Judge Woody Pond.

Other business scheduled for county attention Monday during the regular session includes a report from Bill Francis, of the accounting firm of Doshier, Pickens & Francis, on a job classification and salary study he is performing for the county.

Francis told The News last week the salary study and classification system will be presented the court later this summer. He said from initial investigation it appears the county employees are receiving wages which are "fairly" competitive with salaries paid by private business and industry and other governmental units in the county area.

Francis is also to discuss an extended audit which his firm is also pursuing for the county. The audit is to include a close look at the workload of each county office and the number of employees used to accomplish the various tasks.

Phil Hanley of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is to meet with commissioners to discuss installation of a WATS line in the courthouse. The special telephone line would allow courthouse officials to call any number throughout the state.

County ranks in top five in growing of sugar beets

Randall County ranked in the top five in sugar beet production in the state for 1973, it was announced last week by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Production for the county totalled 16,500 tons, while production on a statewide basis yielded 400,000 tons.

Deaf Smith County was the top sugar beet producer in the state and others in the top five included Castro, Hartley and Parmer counties.

The 1973 crop was harvested from October through December last year.

Robert F. Ginn of Holly Sugar Corporation in Hereford said the 16,500 ton yield in Randall County will mean more than $403,600 to the farmers who grew sugar beets last year.

Ginn said the area immediately surrounding the Holly Sugar plant is the only area in the state where sugar beets are grown. He said production is restricted to an area within easy reach of a processing plant and the Holly plant is the only plant of its kind in the state.

Ginn reported that interest is increasing among residents in the area around Hereford in growing sugar beets, which are contracted to the Holly plant.

Only a handful of farmers in Randall County have begun planting and harvesting sugar beets, according to reports from County Agent John Brazzil.

Brazzil said last spring, just before planting season for the crop, that strong prices and recent research reports indicate increased interest would be justified.

He said research which indicates limited irrigation is needed for the growing of sugar beets coupled with strong prices for sugar make the crop a more

VA official due to aid local vets

The more than 700 veterans attending West Texas State University this fall may not find their monthly GI bill checks increased, but they'll find a man whose sole job will be helping them get their payments on time and in full.

House and Senate conferees have yet to reach an agreement on whether GI bill checks to veterans attending colleges and universities will be increased.

But, recent action by the Veterans Administration will ensure that whatever amount the checks are for, the veterans will receive them with fewer hitches.

A full-time VA representative will be on the campus beginning Aug. 5 to work in the registrar's office exclusively on veterans' problems with pay or other benefits.

A VA spokesman in Waco said the representative, who will be paid by the VA, will deal not only with veterans attending school but will also be available to aid other veterans with their problems in the community.

Even so, he will not replace but will only supplement the veteran service officer, Roland Black.

The spokesman said the representative-type program has been established by the VA in an effort to do away with many problems complained about by veterans attending colleges.

Canyon area veterans may benefit from the establishment of the VA representative's office on campus, but they are also anxiously watching the news media for word on a bill being prepared by a House-Senate conference committee which could impact on educational benefits.

A recent bill signed by President Nixon only extended the eligibility date for veterans to use up their educational benefits. Prior to passage of the law, veterans had to take advantage of their educational benefits before the end of eight years following their release from active duty. The bill extended that period to 10 years.

In an effort to up veterans' educational benefits, both the House and the Senate drafted bills, each

Special funding to be asked for energy probe

After apparently drawing a blank on efforts to have a water resource research center funded for West Texas State University, officials are now preparing to attempt to obtain special funding to establish a coordinated research effort in water and energy conservation.

A special request will be sent the Texas legislature and the legislative budget board later this summer for funding for the research effort, according to Dr. Ray A. Malzahn, academic vice president.

Malzahn said the special line-item request will be forwarded the LBB and legislature along with the university's budget proposals for the next biennium. Currently, officials are working up the biannual budget request, which will be approved by university regents in late September before forwarding to Austin.

The academic vice president said funding for a water resource research center is not available through the office of the Governor as anticipated.

Malzahn said research in relation to the water and energy conservation would probably be conducted in and administered through the Killgore Research Center on campus. The research effort would be devoted to aiding in the solution to conservation problems in the fields of water and energy including wind energy.

While funding for such research would not be forthcoming for at least another year, Malzahn said representatives of the Governor's office are to be on campus this week to discuss the possibility of the university conducting research in another area in the more immediate future.

He said two representatives are to meet with officials to discuss a particular research problem in the area of geology.

University officials had hoped they could get a grant through the Governor's office for research

City workers began early last week tearing down the old city hall annex, formerly a lumber yard office, to make way for construction of a new $1.35 million city hall at the corner of 3rd Avenue and 16th Street. Once the city police department is relocated, the remainder of the annex building will give way to bulldozers. City Manager George Loudder said lumber or other building materials at the destruction site can be hauled off by anyone who wants them.

Uncle Sam And The Bear

"I slept and dreamed that life was beauty. I woke — and found that life was duty . . ." (Helen Sturgis Hooper)

It appears that the Now generation has not waked up yet. Civilization would certainly collapse, and life itself would cease in many areas if everyone did what he wanted instead of what he ought.

But are the flower children any more unrealistic than our national policy makers?

Khrushchev repeatedly promised Americans that he would bury us. In his book, KHRUSHCHEV REMEMBERS, he advised the Soviets to use whatever means necessary short of total war, that could destroy both sides, to conquer the world. (He didn't decry war that would destroy only one side.)

In the epilogue of his book he insists the ideological war must continue between communism and the free world until one side defeats the other. He made it quite clear he expects communism to win.

In his praises of socialism, Khrushchev failed to explain why the Soviets have to build walls to keep their people in, and why thousands have lost their lives in desperate attempts to escape the "Utopia" he wanted to force on the whole world.

Russians make no attempt to hide the fact they intend to destroy us. Why then are American politicians and businessmen running over each other furnishing our avowed enemy with food, factories, refineries, and all kinds of scientific and technical knowledge to help them reach their goal?

In 1963, Richard Nixon said on ABC TV that President Kennedy's sale of wheat to Russia would cost the American taxpayers $100 million. He scored it as the worst mistake of the administration to date.

Less than 10 years later, Nixon gives the Russians wheat that costs Americans more than a billion dollars!

And this happens while American cattlemen lose everything, farmers continue losing money, wage earners endure the worst financial squeeze since the Depression, and businessmen pay 12 to 13 per cent for operating capital.

On the CBS program, "Face the Nation," Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said American people were responsible for current inflation — not government spending.

Stein advocated self discipline, and said he opposed any tax cut because it would only give the people more money to spend.

He failed to explain why it's right for the government to give our money away but wrong for the people who earn it to spend it.

Between 1946 and June 30, 1973, foreign aid has cost American taxpayers $253,171,100,000.

If we had the money, and had voted to give it away, it would be one thing. But we have a larger national debt than all other nations of the world combined!

Our government borrowed money on our account and gave it away — all without our consent (that's called stealing). Just the interest on that money has already cost us over $100 billion, and costs another $22 billion plus every year.

Why does our President want to take $ billions from the people who pay his salary, and give it to our enemies whose constant aim is to destroy us?

It's all quite commendable for our public servants to be concerned for our needy friends abroad. But to give aid and comfort to our enemies is defined as treason by our Constitution.

However, all the sweet charity in the world cannot substitute for the duty elected officials owe the voters who put them in office.

Man has many duties, but some take priority. Man's first duty is to God (Ex. 20:3). His first duties to God, however, are to his family, his church, and his country (I Tim. 5:8, Gal. 6:10).

Current Russian-American relationships sound like the old story about the hunter who was looking for a fur coat when he met a bear who wanted a warm breakfast; both achieved their goals.

Will Uncle Sam wake up before the bear finishes his breakfast?

Closer Look At Taxes

By CARROLL WILSON

This column should have been written two weeks ago.

If there is anything at all to the belief that a newspaper columnist can affect government decision-makers, then this columnist blew it.

Two weeks ago this column might have done some good. Today it can serve to underscore a situation which two weeks ago I felt would be corrected by this time.

If you're a rural taxpayer you're stuck with paying higher taxes this year mandated through an illegal and unequal tax system.

If you're the Santa Fe Railroad or an industry, you're also a victim of an unequal and illegal tax system. You're paying more than anybody else in the county based on the unconstitutional tax scheme which commissioners passed in late June.

Unfortunately, it's probably too late now for county commissioners to pass a resolution which might make their tax system legal. Notices of increases in taxes — with those taxes based on the illegal system — have already gone out to thousands of county residents. The commissioners sit Monday afternoon as a board of equalization.

The thing that's galling is this: Everybody in the courthouse knows, and has known for weeks, that the tax system used since 1969 was illegal.

But, rather than try to come up with a tax system which would be legal, and therefore fair and equitable to everyone, commissioners opted for the easy route and compounded the illegality by passing a scheme proposed by Bill Butler.

Butler, who represents an entirely urban Amarillo precinct, is a lame-duck. He is not seeking re-election after this year and will go off the court in January.

Everybody in the courthouse knows Butler's plan, which is the system your tax increases are based on this year, is illegal.

It is a strange situation when it is general knowledge the Butler plan is unconstitutional, but when county commissioners, who must face re-election at some future time, allow a lame-duck to drag them into hot water.

Apparently, the commissioners feel they didn't have the time to correct the tax system to make it legal this year. But, that feeling is an easy out. Commissioners are paid more than $7000 per year to represent their constituents. They could have put their heads together for a few hours outside of the 2-hour commissioners court meetings they hold each week to come up with a legal system.

Commissioners probably are also comfortable in the feeling county taxes are so low, even with the increases generated by passage of the illegal Butler plan, that most rural folks won't bother to complain about it now and probably won't remember it come election time.

If county rural property taxes were inordinately low under the old illegal system, they are still extremely low under the new illegal system.

Unfortunately, the one man who stands to lose more than anyone else by perpetuation of the illegal tax system is County Judge Woody Pond. In his office Pond can try to be persuasive, but he can't make commissioners do anything.

Pond is sworn to uphold the law in the county courtroom and it must be hard for him to sit by while a lame-duck county commissioner supports an unlawful tax system in the commissioners courtroom.

County commissioners will re-examine their actions in changing the tax system Monday afternoon. Butler is again to make a presentation on how a revaluation of all county property can be accomplished using personnel from the tax assessor-collector's office.

Commissioners should spend more than passing time in examining Butler's plan, if only for the reason that Butler has little to lose if his plan proves to be inadequate or unworkable. He won't be around to face the consequences.

I'd feel much better about the whole thing if a commissioner other than Butler were making the proposals for changes in the county tax structure.

And, I'd feel better if county commissioners would spend as much as 30 minutes discussing his proposals before they adopt them wholesale.

Now Coordinating Board OK Needed On 2 Degrees

With the path cleared by Wednesday approval from the board of regents, West Texas State University officials must now clear only one more hurdle before they can begin offering two new baccalaureate level degrees, one of which will be unique in the state.

That other hurdle is approval from the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, which will consider the proposals for offering of a Bachelor of General Studies and a Bachelor of Applied Arts and Sciences by the university.

The proposals will go before the board in October.

If approval is given, the programs could be implemented by the first summer session of 1975, according to Dr. Ray A. Malzahn, academic vice president.

Malzahn said the Bachelor of General Studies degree will be a unique offering in Texas. But, he said the university anticipates no opposition to offering of the degree from the Coordinating Board.

Likewise, he feels confident the board will approve the degree in applied arts and sciences, a degree now offered on six other college campuses in Texas.

University officials, working long hours since spring to put together the two new program offerings, see both new degrees as offering a wider spectrum of people an opportunity to attain a college education.

They foresee a conservative estimate of fewer than 100 students pursuing each degree, but point to a vast pool of potential students.

The Bachelor of General Studies degree is aimed primarily at persons in the Panhandle area who want to receive a college degree but who are not particularly seeking a career-oriented certification.

Senior citizens interested in returning to college to pursue courses of their own choosing, or housewives who are not interested in gaining a career-tailored course of instruction would be primarily interested in the BGS degree program, officials believe.

The course of study for the BGS would require students to complete about 124 credit hours including the 24-30 hour core educational curriculum required of all students at the university. But, the remainder of their coursework would consist of elective credit hours of their own choosing.

The BAAS degree, likewise, will be tailored for a particular segment of the potential student population.

University officials note that about 1000 students are graduated from area community colleges annually with associate degrees in various applied technical fields. Still others receive certification in various fields. And, even others have compiled vast resources of experience through work in a particular field.

The BAAS degree is designed to build upon various work experiences of students as well as the associate or community college certification to provide a four-year degree program.

The degree is referred to as an "inverted" program because the student is expected to have completed his more specialized education or work before coming to WTSU to pursue the final two years of the degree program.

Malzahn said the BAAS degree will be the most difficult to get off the ground because due to its very nature each degree program must be tailored to the individual student. In addition, the university must work out admission requirements and some format to measure how credit will be given for work experience.

He forecast that the degree will be phased in gradually, with those with applied associate degrees from community colleges allowed initial acceptance.

Malzahn was emphatic that both degrees will offer students a first class education.

"Our purpose was not to provide a second class degree," Malzahn said. "Our intent was to provide a first class degree so the person who earns a Bachelor of Applied Arts and Sciences degree would have a degree in every respect at least the equal of every other baccalaureate degree in the country."

Crowder Presents Paper At Chemical Society Meeting

Dr. Gene Crowder, head of the Department of Chemistry at West Texas State University, presented a paper on July 9 in Albuquerque at the annual Rocky Mountain Regional Meeting of the American Chemical Society.

The paper was entitled "Vibrational Spectra, Normal Coordinate Analysis, and Molecular Conformations of n-Butyl Fluoride," and described research done on the molecular structure of n-butyl fluoride. This compound was found to exist in four different molecular configurations, all interconvertible by rotation of the groups of atoms situated at each end of the molecule.

Theoretical calculations using a digital computer resulted in a 49-parameter vibrational potential energy equation that can be used to calculate vibrational frequencies of several fluoride compounds.

Crowder was assisted in this work by Mr. Hsiang-kuen Mao, a former graduate student at WTSU now working on his PhD degree at Ohio State University.

This work was supported by a three-year, $30,000 grant from The Robert A. Welch Foundation of Houston.

She is giving the recital in partial fulfillment of the graduation requirements for the Master of Music in Piano degree.

At WTSU, Miss Wang is a member of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary professional music sorority.

The recital program includes J. S. Bach's "Fantasie in C minor, BWV 906," Schubert's "Sonata Op. 120, in A Major," Francis Poulenc's "Presto in B flat Major," and Max Reger's "Blaetter und Bluten" and "Humoreske, Op. 20, No. 4."

"Three Nocturnes for Piano Trio" by Ernest Block will also be performed. Miss Wang will be accompanied by Greg Shaffer of El Paso on violin and James Wolden of Amarillo on violincello.

Miss Wang resides at 1911 Fifth Avenue in Canyon.

No Word Yet On Opinions From Atty. Gen.

County school board trustees will meet in special session as soon as requested Attorney General rulings are received here on their role in determining the issue of annexation of a 50-acre tract of land to the Amarillo school district, County Judge Woody Pond said last week.

Pond, who is ex-officio county school superintendent, said he has received a response from the attorney general's office indicating work is currently in progress on opinions relating to two specific questions regarding the annexation.

County school trustees were named defendants in a civil suit filed recently in district court here. The suit seeks the ouster of the board members, basing its allegation on allegedly illegal voting procedures. It also seeks a court instruction to the board to annex the 50-acre tract to Amarillo's district from the Canyon school district.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen, who under a new law must act as counsel to the trustees, has asked for attorney general opinions on the legality of the election procedure used when the trustees were elected and on the role of the county board in deciding the annexation issue.

Dowlen said at week's end he has yet to receive word from the attorney general on the opinions.

Sheryl Alisa Sommer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sommer, and Wade Bernard Wilhelm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wilhelm, were among more than 500 students from throughout the state selected to attend the seminar on the basis of leadership ability and scholastic achievement.

The Texas Farm Bureau sponsored the seminar on the Baylor University campus.

Local Farm Bureau President Joe Turpin said the seminar was to convey to the students a better understanding of American heritage and the private enterprise system.

Wade Wilhelm and Sheryl Sommer attended a Texas Farm Bureau citizenship seminar last week in Waco under the sponsorship of the Randall County Farm Bureau. They returned from the seminar Friday.

Escapee Given 16-Year Term For Burglary

A California escaped convict was given a 16-year prison sentence Thursday morning by 47th Dist. Court Judge Gene Jordan after pleading guilty to a charge of burglary.

Johnny Mills, who told the judge he escaped from a California prison and made his way to Texas, was charged with the February burglary of an Amarillo residence.

The prosecution contended Mills was attempting to burglarize a home on South Trigg in Amarillo when the home owners returned and caught him. He pulled a gun on the woman, the state said, but then fled the house and was caught shortly thereafter by policemen.

The experience of growers, primarily in the Umbarger area, indicate also that Randall County would be a good location for further sugar beet production, he said.

Ginn said increases in costs to grow other grain crops has forced many farmers to take a second look at the possibility of raising sugar beets.

He said the gross return on sugar beets is greater than the gross return on grain crops, but that the cost to raise sugar beets is also higher.

The long growing season required for sugar beets has also been seen as a drawback, Ginn said.

Planting for the crop begins in March and harvest is usually conducted after Oct. 1.

Ginn said the 1974 crop experienced some trouble due to the dry conditions during the spring, but is making good progress this summer.

favor the bond issue when all information is presented.

"I think it's great this many people at this point see the need and are willing to study the issue when it is presented," he said. "They do not have a closed mind on the issue."

The perceived need for smaller classes also ties into the need for more buildings.

Currently, Jacobs said, many classes have close to 30 students. Board members are studying the possibility of expanding the availability of space in current and proposed buildings by going to the "middle school" concept wherein the elementary schools would have grades 1-5, the middle school would have grades 6-8 and the high school 9-12.

Interestingly enough, those interviewed in the UT poll here felt that an adequate amount of money is being spent for education of Canyon school children. They perceived no need for more cash outlay.

Many respondents, particularly those who are not parents, offered no opinion on that question.

A similar question asked the interviewers if enough money was being spent on more than a dozen specific areas in the system. The survey indicated the majority of the respondents felt enough money was being spent on such things as buildings, kinds of courses offered, training and experience of teachers, athletic facilities, administration, and other areas.

Jacobs said areas identified in the survey, in the self-evaluation and in the report from the visiting accreditation committee as needing attention have been compiled into lists for each of the four schools in the district. He said many of the "needs listed will be improved at once. Others may take more time.

"If we don't take action on these, we'll be wasting I hate to think of how many man-hours," Jacobs said.

They had initially planned to begin a water resource research center on the campus to conduct the research effort.

At least one university researcher is already engaged in research on energy conservation. Dr. Vaughan Nelson, head of the physics department, is working in conjunction with an Amarillo College professor on a wind energy research problem with funding through the state.

Nelson and the AC professor have already conducted several years of research and issued a report indicating the Texas Panhandle is the best source of wind energy in the country.

Duro Creek on the Curry Ranch.

Leigh Dyer, brother-in-law of Col. Charles Goodnight, drove about 400 cattle into the valley now occupied by Canyon in 1877 and hauled the logs that winter for the home.

In 1881, the log cabin became the headquarters of the T-Anchor Ranch, a spread which continued until 1902.

Several early-day settlers and speculators owned the ranch and the ranchhouse. Cowboys of the T-Anchor used the ranchhouse for a pay office, post office and chow hall. Bullet holes in the dining room ceiling are still visible, evidence of a gunfight.

During the 1890s, the house served as bunkhouse and dining house for ranch hands as the T-Anchor passed into new hands.

J. L. Prichard bought the house as his family's residence in 1906 and added a kitchen and bedroom.

The state purchased the home and 200 acres of land from Prichard in 1927 for $13,000, and the kitchen, bedroom and a porch were removed.

If the ranchhouse is moved to the WTSU campus, it will become the first outdoor-type exhibit at the museum. Hanson said an old wooden-spoke windmill has also been donated to go along with the house at the campus site.

Mrs. Joe Kirk Ziegler nee Jo Elyn Tippery

Miss Tippery-Ziegler Pledge Double Ring Vows Saturday

Miss Jo Elyn Tippery and Joe Kirk Ziegler pledged double ring nuptial vows Saturday evening at the First Assembly of God Church in Canyon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo N. Tippery of Canyon and parents of the bridegroom are Jack Ziegler and the late Mrs. Leah Ziegler of Canyon.

Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Pettit officiated at the exchange of marriage vows. Appropriate wedding selections were played at the organ by Mrs. Earl Gene Peppard. She also accompanied Mrs. Don Buchanan of Amarillo as she sang The Lord's Prayer and Kelly Forehand who sang The Wedding Song and We've Only Just Begun.

Wedding vows were exchanged before a heart shaped candelabra decorated with yellow mums, gladioli and daisies with a gold seven branched candelabra bearing yellow tapers featuring greenery on each side. The kneeling bench centered the candle arrangement and other decorations featured yellow mums, gladioli and daisies. Spiral candelabra and greenery with yellow candles were flanked with palms as a background setting for the wedding party.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal miramist wedding gown featuring Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta which was designed with a high neckline, a bib front bodice, empire waistline styling, long Camelot sleeves and a bell skirt. Inserts of the lace enhanced the neckline, and was repeated on the bodice, sleeves and skirt of the gown along with the wide ruffle at the hemline of the skirt.

A detachable Watteau train accented the wedding gown and her veil of imported illusion cascaded from a Coif sprinkled with tiny daisies.

Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of yellow sweetheart roses, white daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath with streamers of yellow and green ribbon. She carried the bouquet atop a white Bible and in the wedding tradition had an 1870 silver dollar key chain which was a gift from her father as "something old," for "something new" she had a single strand of pearls which were a gift from the bridegroom, for "something borrowed" she had pearl earrings borrowed from Mary Kate Keeling. The tradition was completed with the blue garter and a coin in the shoe which was a three pence gift from her father.

Maid of honor was Miss Tanya Kent of Canyon, who wore a yellow flocked sheer formal length dress over yellow satin with a yellow picture hat.

Misses Terri Watson and Mary Lisa McBride, both of Canyon, served as bridesmaids. They wore yellow flocked sheer dresses in a formal length over green satin with green picture hats. Each attendant carried a nosegay of yellow daisies and baby's breath with green and yellow streamers.

Flower girl was Amy Weidner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Weidner of Amarillo. She carried a white basket trimmed with yellow and green ribbon and wore a dress similar to the maid of honor.

Ringbearer was Wade Mosier, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Mosier of Hart, a nephew of the bride.

Best man was Galen Davis of Wichita Falls, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Randall Burton of Canyon and Mike Shaddix of Amarillo.

The bride's brothers-in-law, P. E. Mosier of Hart and R. E. Higginbotham of Canyon, ushered for the occasion.

A reception for the newlywed couple and their wedding guests followed in the church fellowship hall where the bride's table was covered with a white net tablecloth over yellow. Centering the table was a silver candelabrum bearing yellow candles with green and yellow floral accents. The four tiered wedding cake was trimmed with yellow daisies and topped with "love birds." Attending the bride's table were Mrs. P. E. Mosier of Hart and Mrs. R. E. Higginbotham of Canyon, both sisters of the bride.

A green cloth trimmed in yellow covered the bridegroom's table which was centered with a floral arrangement of yellow and white daisies. Attending the groom's table was Miss Mary Kate Keeling of Canyon and Miss Dianne McAtee of Panhandle, cousin of the bride. Also in the houseparty were Mrs. B. L. Pearson, Mrs. Bill Townsend, Mrs. N. D. Watson and Mrs. Max Brummett, all of Canyon. Guests were registered by Miss Debbie Taylor of Canyon.

For the occasion, the bride's mother selected a formal length beige dress with sheer ruffled sleeves and her corsage was yellow sweetheart roses with yellow daisies. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Galen Davis, wore a floor length sheer dress of beige and cranberry and had a matching corsage.

Jack Ziegler, father of the bridegroom, was host for the rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Yum Yum Tree Restaurant in Canyon.

Following the wedding ceremony and reception, the bride changed to a beige pantsuit with apricot shell and matching accessories as the couple departed on their wedding trip. They plan to establish their home at 2512 8th Avenue, Canyon after July 25.

The bride is a senior at Canyon High School and is employed with the Randall County Tax office.

Controversial Proposals Could Spell End To All-Male Football

By JIMMY ROGERS

Controversial proposals which could spell the end of all-male collegiate football games were examined in-depth by five representatives of West Texas State University last week at a briefing conducted by the federal government in Houston.

The proposals, which would be regulations under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, would have a far-reaching impact on the nature of all sports activities in the country.

Keith Winter, WTSU director of development, Gene Mayfield, athletic director, Karen Johnson, university counsel, Dean of Women Saundra Meeks, and Allene Stovall, coordinator of women's athletics, attended the session at the University of Houston.

Lawyers and other representatives of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare briefed the college officials on the proposed regulations which would impact on athletics specifically.

Winter told The News Friday the university will file several documents disagreeing with the proposed regulations. The university's recommendations will be submitted before Oct. 15.

"There was a lot of confusion even on the part of those conducting the briefing," Winter said. He said the briefing contained no new information about the proposed regulations, but following the briefing the representatives of HEW fielded questions asked by participants from various schools.

The proposed regulations, which will affect all schools receiving federal funds, are recorded in the Federal Register, volume 39, number 120, June 20, 1974. The regulation concerning athletics states in general, "No person shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, be treated differently because of, be treated differently from another person or otherwise be discriminated against in any physical education or athletic program separately on such basis; provided, however that a recipient may operate or sponsor separate teams from members of each sex where selection for such teams is based upon competitive skill."

The proposed regulations call for students or an advisory board to make annual determination of what sports shall be participated in that year. Winter said HEW had not considered the fact that most athletic schedules are planned two to five years in advance.

He said the proposed regulations would force the opening of all sports to any person. But, if a school allowed a girl to be on the varsity basketball team, even if she sat on the bench a new team would not have to be formed for girls.

Winter pointed out that boys would be allowed to try out for girls sports as well as vice-versa. He said if a school had a women's volleyball team and men tried out for the team, if the men beat out the women then the team of men would be the women's volleyball team.

The proposed regulations call for a comparable sport to be offered the opposite sex if one sex does not qualify for a certain sport. According to Winter, when the HEW representatives were asked what a sport comparable to football would be they admitted they did not know. Winter said the representatives of HEW could not define "athletics."

Under the proposed regulations, schools which receive federal funding under Title IX will be required to "inform members of each sex of the availability for them of athletic opportunities equal to those available for members of the other sex and of the nature of those opportunities" which were previously limited. The school must provide support and training activities for members of each sex designed to improve and expand their capabilities and interests to participate in such opportunities.

The schools will not be allowed to discriminate in the provision of necessary equipment or supplies for each team in a separate program where each sex has its own team. But the proposed regulations do not call for "equal aggregate expenditures for athletics for members of each sex."

A release from the NCAA charges that HEW has made broad and ambiguous mandates, leaving those who administer federal financial assistance to educational institutions the widest discretion to interpret and implement the regulations as they please.

According to the release, Sen. John Tower of Texas attempted to introduce an amendment to the regulations but the senator's amendment was watered down in conference to a "vague provision" which merely calls for HEW regulations to give recognition to the "differences" between various sports.

Facilities for the various sports offered must be comparable. Separate showers and locker rooms may be offered and are to be comparable to facilities provided for the opposite sex. Practice and playing fields are to be comparable.

According to the HEW fact sheet released June 18, "the goal of the regulation in the area of competitive athletics is to secure equal opportunity for males and females while allowing schools and colleges flexibility in determining how best to provide such opportunity."

When a university offers athletic scholarships, according to Caspar Weinberger, secretary of HEW, there must be comparability. He says in a HEW fact sheet that if a university offers 150 football scholarships for men and a group of women also desires to have a football team, "a comparable — but not equal — number of scholarships would have to be made available to women."

According to HEW reports, if these regulations are accepted enforcement will be based on seeking voluntary compliance first. Only if voluntary efforts fail will enforcement move to the other two methods provided by law — either an administrative proceeding to terminate federal assistance, or other means authorized by law such as referral of a violator to the Department of Justice for court action.

Kenyan Signs With WT Track

Joseph Kemi Tiony, who has already established himself as a world class runner, has signed an athletic scholarship agreement with West Texas State University track coach Bob Kitchens.

The 19-year-old Tiony (pronounced Tee-on) is from Eldoret, Kenya.

At a track meet in the Crystal Palace Stadium at London, England, in August of 1973, the young Kenyan runner scored a double win — taking both the 1,500 and 800-meter events.

In the 1,500 meters, Tiony ran 3:42.5, which is the equivalent to a 3:59.5 clocking in the mile run. He won the 800 meters in 1:49.8. The 1,500-meter race is about 16 yards short of a full mile. He was 18 years of age at that time.

Kitchens has been corresponding with the 5-8, 145-pound runner since March. Tiony agreed to attend West Texas State University last month and has now been accepted for admission to this school after the results of his English usage tests were known. He plans to arrive in Canyon Aug. 22.

"I was told about Joseph by Eastern New Mexico University's Mike Boit," said Kitchens. "Boit, who won a bronze medal for third place in the 800 meters at the 1972 Olympics in Germany while representing Kenya, attended the same high school as did Joseph."

Tiony has graduated from St. Patrick's Secondary school in Eldoret. That, according to Boit, is the top school in Kenya for both scholarship and athletics.

Brother Marcellus Broderick, St. Patrick's head school master and athletic coach, wrote to Kitchens, saying, "You won't be sorry for taking Joseph. He is an outstanding person and you may have a medal winner in the next Olympics. He is certainly the top schoolboy runner in Kenya for both the 800 and 1,500 meters."

Tiony is working this summer on his father's farm and is running on his own after working hours.

"I am delighted that a young man of the quality of Joseph Tiony has decided to pursue his education and track career at West Texas State University," said WTSU president Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins. "He comes highly recommended, both as a person and an athlete. We will do our best to help him achieve his goals in the classroom and on the track."

There was some controversy this past spring at both the NCAA and NAIA national meets about talented foreign runners. A rule, prior to this past spring, required NCAA schools to recruit younger athletes from foreign countries. That rule was changed and now colleges and universities can recruit athletes from other nations at any age, as long as they have not attended a school past the high school level.

As Tiony was born March 17, 1955, and is only 19 years of age, he would have been eligible to compete on the NCAA level at any time.

"We were extremely fortunate to have been told about Joseph early this year," said Kitchens. "Since I started corresponding with Joseph and Brother Broderick, other schools have contacted him. As we were the first school to express interest, Joseph has leaned our direction."

Kitchens, whose Buffalo track team placed fourth in the Missouri Valley Conference outdoor championships in May at Denton, has been lacking a quality distance runner for his program.

"Joseph will make our entire team competitive on the Missouri Valley Conference level in cross country, indoor track and outdoor track," said the Buffalo track coach. "Joseph, himself, will be highly competitive on the national level of collegiate track competition."

Tiony, who plans to major in physical education at West Texas State, maintained a 2.8 grade average (based on a 4-point system) in high school. He was named the school's Sportsman of the Year in 1973 and was the captain of the school athletic team.

Golf Association Membership Reaches 40

Hunsley Hills golf association now has 40 members after only two weeks of registration according to Dale Newman, pro at Hunsley Hills golf course. The association members will meet next week to elect officers for the group. Membership cost is $3 per person.

The goal of the association is to help develop the golf course and increase participation by golfers. Money received from membership dues will be used to provide a base to start the operations of the association and to be used for miscellaneous expenses that might occur through sponsoring tournaments. The money will also be used to create a fund to be utilized in putting on an end-of-the-year club tournament.

The association will elect committees to develop tournaments, handle entries, determine the amount of prizes and give the awards. Committees will also be established to set up rules and regulations for the course and to help enforce these rules.

The association will attempt to develop pride in the maintenance and upkeep of the course and the future developments of the course will also be considered by the group.

Swimming Lessons Offered At WTSU

Swimming lessons will be offered at WTSU July 29-August 9. Jackie Stephens, a sophomore P.E. major at WTSU, and Nina Tucker, a senior P.E. major at WTSU, will be the instructors. Classes will run from 1:40 p.m. to 2:20 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. to 3:10 p.m.

The classes will include beginners, advanced beginners and intermediates and will be limited to six students in each class.

All-Stars Prepare For District Tourney

Canyon Little League All-Stars will enter the district tournament in Pampa Monday evening. They will play Borger in an 8 p.m. game. Dumas will play Childress in the second game.

According to Sturdy Wanamaker, coach for the Canyon All-Stars, Borger has a strong team. Last year the Borger All-Stars advanced as far as the state tournament. Wanamaker said that each team in the district contest has one good pitcher. He stated that all teams in the district tourney won their area with an impressive score in each game.

Canyon To Host American Legion Tourney

District 18 American Legion Baseball tournament will be played at the Canyon Babe Ruth baseball field July 24-27. Teams involved in the double elimination tournament will be Amarillo Tascosa and Amarillo Caprock, Dumas and Canyon.

American Legion baseball teams are composed of boys ages 15 and over. The teams are supported by local American Legion posts.

The tournament is being sponsored by Canyon's American Legion Palo Duro Post 97. Judge Woody Pond is the post commander. Tom Lair, manager for the Canyon team will be the tournament coordinator. Members of the summer youth corp will be grounds keepers for the tournament.

The winner of the local tournament will advance to the state tournament that will be held in Plainview later this summer.

Toeing the mound for the Canyon team as they face Dumas in the 8 p.m. game will be Scott Keeling. Ed Lair will pitch for the locals in the second game on Thursday night. Ken Cooper and Hoss Ratliff will be in relief for both games. Pitchers are allowed only 12 innings in one week. According to Ken Williams, coach for the American Legion team here, pitching will be the deciding factor in the games. The team with the strongest bull pen will have the best advantage.

In district play Canyon has won 12 and lost 4. For the overall season, Canyon has won 15 and lost 5.

Members of Canyon's American Legion team included Keeling, Lair, Cooper, Ratliff, Wayne Pitt, Jay Huey, Greg Taylor, Allen Shankles, Ronnie Hicks, Lynn Wright, Ronnie Whitney, Doug Day, David Coronado and Terry Martin.

Canyon High coaches will be attending coaching school in Houston beginning July 28.

Presently many of the football players are getting in shape for the coming season. Some are taking advantage of the weight program that is open to the public each Tuesday and Thursday night at the junior high gym. The weight program is sponsored by the Canyon summer recreation program.

This week Head Football Coach at CHS, Ron Mills, talks about his break-away threats on kickoff and punt returns.

Adrian Foil, five feet nine inch 145 pound senior, will probably be at the tail back position. Foil, who started several games last year should see a lot of action during the coming season.

Craig Johnson, an offensive halfback, is described by Mills as his fastest running back. Johnson runs a 10.2 hundred. Johnson will be used a lot on sweeps and options.

Joe Luquette, a sophomore this year, will be under the watchful eye of Mills. Mills said that Luquette is a tough little guy who will have a chance to make it.

Ronnie Hicks and Lyndon Brazzil will also be in the running.

When workouts do start, the team will have a lot of work to do in preparation for their first game Sept. 6 against Lubbock Monterey. Monterey is picked in the number two slot of their tough 4-A district. Monterey will have a six feet four inch 210 pound tailback who will pose a problem for Canyon.

chapel sweep. She wore a matching picture hat with waistlength illusion streamers and her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from a number of Japanese friends. She carried an arm bouquet of Woburnabby roses intermingled with baby's breath.

An antique satin cloth covered the bride's reception table at the American Room of the Ramada Inn where the wedding reception was held following the formal recitation of marriage vows at the church. The bride's table featured two silver candelabra bearing ivory tapers with cluster arrangements of mums, roses and baby's breath. The wedding cake was topped with a nosegay.

The bridegroom's table had a silver coffee service and guests were served a chocolate cake with ivory frosting and decorations featuring the outline of a train.

Mrs. Lyle Brandt served as organist at the reception where the tea girls included Mrs. David Winn, Mrs. Mitti Young, Sandi Box, Vickie McKelvey of Wichita, and Cathy Schroeder of Newton, along with the bridesmaids for assistance.

For travel, the bride changed to a blue and white striped polyester jersey dress. The couple will make their home at 2608 Second Avenue, Apt. B-6 in Canyon after their wedding trip to Denver, Colo.

Members of the immediate families, the wedding party and out of town guests were entertained at a backyard supper by the parents of the bride on the evening of the wedding and the parents of the bridegroom were host and hostess for the rehearsal dinner at the Ramada Inn in the Champagne Room the evening prior to the wedding.

News Brief

Former Canyon residents, Allen and Estella Parsons, are the owners of the K-Bob's Steakhouse in Hereford. While residents of Canyon, the Parsons operated the Spudnut Shop here and were active in many civic affairs.

Local Club Aids Park

The World's of Nature Park being planned for a 105 acre site in Amarillo adjacent the present Helium monument received a boost this week as members of the Heritage Woman's Club of Canyon sent a pickup loaded with used newspapers to the project.

The park is a Bi-Centennial Horizons project sponsored by the Amarillo Zoological Society which has membership from throughout the Canyon-Amarillo area. The park being planned will include both a botannical garden and zoo area and will be partially funded from public support such as the recycling of newspapers and the bring-a-brick project currently underway.

Canyon's Heritage Woman's Club has taken on the project of collecting newspapers from local members which will be sent to Panhandle Recycling in downtown Amarillo. For each ton of newspapers recycled the plant will give $14 to the project, rather than paying for individual collections. In Amarillo there is presently a large collection container for newspapers at the T G & Y parking lot in Wolflin Village where Canyon residents are welcome to participate.

The Heritage Woman's Club will be participating in the community project in cooperation with a conservation department report handed in annually to the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

Bigham To Teach Distributive Education

Distributive Education is a new vocational program which will begin in the fall of 1974 at Canyon High School. Jerry Bigham will be the instructor.

Bigham participated in two years of Distributive Education at Tascosa High School in Amarillo while a student there. He was an officer in Distributive Education Clubs of America during those two years. He was president of the club his senior year. During the two year period, he took part in DECA state contests.

Bigham attended WTSU majoring in marketing and was granted a degree in 1972. He taught DE at Big Spring for two years. He stated there are 17 who have signed up for DE for the coming year. He hopes to start the year with 20 students.

DE gives the student an opportunity to learn in the classroom and on-the-job in the areas of marketing and distribution. The DE student will be able to attend his or her regular classes, including a DE class, in the morning hours and then go to their various training stations in the afternoon.

In the DE class, the student will be introduced to all facets of the industries in the marketing and distributive areas. Topics such as salesmanship, customer relations, business ethics, displaying, advertising, market research and job application are only a few of the areas of discussion along with each students specifically related materials.

In the afternoon the DE student will go to an approved training station and work at least 15 hours per week. Any job within the realm of aiding the customer in the wholesaling, retailing, or service industries is approvable. Such jobs as sales clerk, receiving clerk, grocery checker, grocery sacker, service station trainee, waitress, photography studio trainee, retail store trainee and florist shop trainee are examples of the type of work to be done according to Bigham.

Any junior or senior student in high school with an interest in the DE area is eligible for enrollment. Those students who would like to make application for the DE program or any employer who would like to hire a DE student or wants to know more about the program should contact Bigham, Distributive Education Coordinator, Canyon High School, or call Bigham at 655-2168.
